D. P. Story

A Horse

Grand Canyon, Arizona

For photo albums in which all photos are the same size—portrait or landscape, using a panel option seems to work for portrait and fullwidth for landscape. The panel can be written to as in this example. Use the `textpos` package to place additional comments on the landscape photo.

Buffalo in South Dakota

This photo was downloaded from the Internet, and it's not clear what portion of the Canyon is depicted.

I wish I could say that I rode the Canyon on my horse, but I can't, and it is not my horse, and I don't own a horse. On the positive side, this does illustrate that you can insert other photos into the panel.
